He was born on 6 July 1966 into the royal family of Owo, the son of the late Oba Adekola Ogunoye II, who also occupied the revered throne of the Olowo.

Olowo continues to receive recognition for its emphasis on peace, unity and constructive traditional leadership. At his 60th birthday in July 2026, he was particularly commended for his diplomatic approach to traditional governance and for fostering harmony between cultural preservation and modern development.

His Majesty has continued to support initiatives that engage young people in Owo Kingdom. The Olowo's Cup has been revitalised as a platform for secondary-school football, youth participation and talent discovery, with the 2026 edition involving more than 30 schools.

Moreover, his leadership, traditional and cultural activities in Owo have continued to receive strong royal support. His Palace has remained actively involved in preserving Owo's heritage and strengthening relationships among the communities within the kingdom.

As Chairman of the Ondo State Council of Obas, His Majesty has taken on a wider responsibility beyond Owo, providing leadership within the state's traditional institution and contributing to discussions on community development, cultural preservation and the relationship between traditional rulers and government

May the throne of the Olowo continue to flourish, and may His Imperial Majesty's reign be blessed with wisdom, peace, good health and enduring accomplishments.
